At Olin Business School, we position students to thrive and compete in the global business environment. 20 percent of Olin students are from locations outside the United States. Our international students are top scholars in their home countries and bring firsthand knowledge of their regional and national business practices and customs to Olin. Many of our domestic students are interested in global business careers. Interactions among these diverse students spark insights that bridge American and global business cultures.

Olin Student Body Profile

In 2012, international students comprised 20 percent of Olin’s overall student body. Percentages of international students vary by program.
